HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

Bagnell Dam was constructed by Union Electric Light and Power Company from 1929 to 1931. The Dam is on the Osage River at the Camden and Miller County line near Lakeside, Missouri. It supplies hydroelectric power through its Osage Power Plant and the Taum Sauk Pumped Storage Plant. The Dam created the large man-made Lake of the Ozarks, which flooded an area of approximately 55,000 acres. The flooded land contained many cemeteries that had to be moved before the construction project was completed. The resulting series of plats in this collection show the location of the original cemeteries, the names of those interred (if known), and the cemeteries to which the bodies were relocated.

SERIES

Cemetery Relocation Plats, 1931

Original order maintained: index first, then plats of old cemeteries, then plats of new cemeteries in mostly-numerical order

Scope and Content

The cemetery plats include individuals' names on the tombstones if available, as well as the inscription on the stone (dates, quotations). All blueprints are either 21½" x 29½" or 17½" x 23½." Records include the names, locations, and burials in the old and new cemeteries. These plats have been microfilmed on reel #R120; however, the images on the film are difficult to read. Finally, the index book in Folder 1 is also available in the Reference Room on the Miller County shelf as well as microfilm reel #R86.
