SERIES

Photographs (1822-1993)
Printed Materials (1924-1998)
Audio/Visual Materials (1920-1999)

PHOTOGRAPHS, 1822-1993

Arrangement: By topic

Scope and Content

This series consists of original photographs, copy prints and copy negatives as well as postcards and a few document scans. Ninety-eight percent of the images are of sites and people in Jefferson City. Most of the images are reproducible with no other attribution other than a standard citation mentioning this manuscript collection (MS433 Dr. Joseph Summers Collection) and/or the original photographer or publisher. However, some of these images – particularly the copies – are post-public domain and not approved for publication by the Archives. If this is the case, there will be a notation in the Excel spreadsheet specifying where we believe the original to be housed (or its last-known owner) and stating that the patron is responsible for tracking down formal permissions.

All images have been digitized and are on two DVDs labeled MS433 in Reference. Approximately 200 images are also on the Z Drive.

Scope and Content

Thirteen audiocassette tapes recorded by Dr. Joseph Summers, Jr. He is describing the images in the photograph series in order by folder number then image number. Note: these are the old box and folder numbers, recorded in the last column of the Excel index spreadsheet only. They do not correspond to the current box and folder numbers, but it is entirely possible to still follow along.

The VHS and Betacam feature three short films of a young Joseph Summers. The first two are of Summers and his friends in a creek and then of them driving a Ford truck in and around Jefferson City. The last is a Boy Scout camp. The original films were loaned to the Archives for conversion. Archives retained the VHS and returned the films to the donor.
