Scope and Content

Five of the images below concern a World War I parade. A large Victory Arch was erected over High Street in Jefferson City and names of men and women inscribed on its pillars. The banner across the top read, "to our fallen heroes." A large crowd of men, women, and children watches from either side of the street.

The names on arch are reprinted below; links are to the soldiers' records from the Archives' online database.

All images are available as TIFFs on Manuscript DVD #7 in Reference as well as the Z Drive.
