Scope and Content

Three St. Louis organizations invited members of the Missouri General Assembly and the Governor to visit their city and partake of an elaborate dinner. The St. Louis City Council, the Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' Association, represented by John How (Mayor), Henry Ames (President) and Robert Holmes (President) respectively, submitted their invitation on January 27, 1857. One week later, Governor Polk and an unknown number of Senators and Representatives took them up on their offer.

The event was held in the Varieties Theatre of the St. Louis Mercantile Library. Alexander Guenaudon catered the event, for which he was paid $2,500. This series contains Guenaudon's menu. Newspapers describe the event as "the grandest affair of the kind that ever came off in the city." (Glasgow Weekly Times, 02/19/1857, p. 2) Approximately 450 people were in attendance, the vast majority of whom belonged to the three St. Louis organizations.

This menu has been digitized and is available on the Z Drive as well as Manuscript DVD #8 in Reference.
