Historical and Biographical Notes

On July 17, 1981, two suspended walkways above the lobby floor of the Hyatt Regency hotel in downtown Kansas City, Missouri collapsed, killing 114 people and injuring hundreds of others.

The event had a lasting impact on the lives of those affected. Moreover, it shaped the future of emergency rescue planning, engineering and architectural design as well as the handling and formation of class action lawsuits.

The hotel was managed by Hyatt Hotels Corporation, and the building itself owned by Crown Center Redevelopment Corporation, an arm of Hallmark Cards, Inc. Survivors, victims' families, rescuers and witnesses sued all three corporations as well as the architects, engineers and construction companies who built the hotel. The lawsuits hit nearly every level of the courts system: local, regional, state, federal. Additional hearings sprang up at the state level and with the City of Kansas City municipal government.

The court system was initially overwhelmed with individual cases. However, it did not take long (approximately one month) before the first class action suit was brought in the Jackson County Circuit Court. Several other class actions formed in its wake. The lawsuits met with varying degrees of success for the plaintiffs.

Today, the hotel still stands and is known as the Sheraton Kansas City Hotel at Crown Center; the Hyatt Hotels Corporation is no longer associated with the hotel. The Crown Center Redevelopment Corporation and Hallmark still own the building. A public memorial to the victims was erected in 2015 in a park across the street from the hotel.

In 1981, reporter Richard A. Serrano (1953-) was working for The Kansas City Times. Serrano shared in the 1982 Pulitzer Prize in journalism (local, general or spot news reporting) for his and his colleagues' writing on the Hyatt disaster, an honor they also shared with The Kansas City Star. The skywalks disaster has always stuck with him, and in the late 2010s he decided to write a book with the particular goals of making the facts public and giving voice to the victims and survivors. His book Buried Truths and the Hyatt Skywalks: The Legacy of America's Epic Structural Failure was published in 2021 by Purdue University.

Throughout the course of his research, Serrano gathered troves of primary and secondary resources on the skywalk collapse, the individuals involved and the court cases heard. He also obtained materials from the son of another researcher, Robert Gordon (1941-2008), who was an attorney with class action lawsuits against the Hyatt and Hallmark corporations and who had drafted his own book on the disaster. Serrano donated a majority of his extensive collection of materials to the Missouri State Archives in January 2023.

Bob Gordon Book Drafts and Correspondence, 1981-2000

Extent: 3.20 cubic ft.

Arrangement: Book drafts arranged chronologically with undated drafts at the end, followed by correspondence.

Scope and Content

Robert “Bob” Gordon was a lawyer for the Hyatt rescuers’ class action court case. In 1983, he began writing a book about the Hyatt disaster. The book, called When They Didn’t Care Enough and later House of Cards, was never published, although it was close to publication several times. Here is a summary of the major milestones:

- In late 1984, Gordon engaged professional writer Robert Byrne to help with the project; Byrne’s own book called Skyscraper came out earlier that year. Gordon paid Byrne $15,000 to co-author the book. Ultimately, the two parted due to strong disagreements (see 1985 correspondence).
- In 1988 or 1989, the publishing company Simon & Schuster and their editor Fred Hills engaged Gordon and released news stories that they would publish his book first in summer 1989, then in summer 1990. The deal was subsequently dissolved because “we didn’t see eye-to-eye on how the manuscript should be shaped and, thus, we agreed to disagree.” (05/08/1995 letter)
- On May 11, 1995, Gordon signed a contract with Julian Bach Literary Agency to help him pitch the book to publishers. They were unsuccessful.

These book drafts were acquired by Rick Serrano during the research process for his own book. Many pages contain markups/edits. For the sake of consistency, chapter numbers are written below as numerals (Gordon varied).

Correspondence, Official, 1979-1989

Extent: 1.58 cubic ft.

Arrangement: Chronological; subset related to the 1979 roof collapse at end.

Scope and Content

Correspondence to and from various agencies and law firms regarding the Hyatt skywalk collapse and its related court cases. Series ends with a subset on the 1979 roof collapse.

In terms of attorney and attorney-client correspondence and Missouri law, there are two legal areas to consider: attorney-client privilege and the work-product doctrine. These areas are governed by the Missouri Supreme Court's Rules of Professional Conduct and by state statute.

Attorney-client privilege is sacred and any correspondence between a client and attorney is considered part of this privilege. Supreme Court Rule 4-1.6(a) states, "A lawyer shall not reveal information relating to the representation of a client unless the client gives informed consent, the disclosure is impliedly authorized in order to carry out the representation, or the disclosure is permitted by Rule 4-1.6(b)." The exceptions in 4-1.6(b) may be found on the Supreme Court's website.

Missouri's work-product doctrine is detailed in Supreme Court Rule 56-01(b)(3). "Work-product" includes correspondence from attorney-to-attorney, judge-to-judge or any combination therein. It also includes attorney and judge notes that may or may not have been sent to any other party, especially if those notes involve a strategy, are draft items or reveal a thought process. Items of work-product are not subject to discovery by opposing counsel. In addition to attorney-to-attorney correspondence, etc., some of the letters in this series contain handwritten notations and therefore fall under the doctrine.

Federal rules regarding work-product are outlined in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(3). The gist of the federal rule is very similar to the state's. Rule 26(b)(3) applies to the U.S. Western District cases.

A second applicable state rule regarding attorney work-product is found in Revised Statutes of Missouri (RSMo) § 610.021(1). It opens with a definition, "Legal actions, causes of action or litigation involving a public governmental body and any confidential or privileged communications between a public governmental body or its representatives and its attorneys," and closes with the statement, "legal work product shall be considered a closed record." Therefore, any communications in this series from a government attorney or employee are CLOSED.

The collection donor, Rick Serrano, obtained most or all of the files in this series from attorney Bob Gordon's son. The Archives has no documentation from any of the litigants granting informed consent to Gordon or any other attorney to release any of their correspondence, as required under Rule 4-1.6(a). By and large, the Archives has not made determinations which items fall under Rule 4-1.6(a). Therefore, unless otherwise indicated, this entire series of records is RESTRICTED. To make an appeal for specific item(s) to be opened, please contact the Archives and staff will evaluate on a case-by-case basis. Items with existing “OPEN” approval are indicated as such.

Finally, some items also fall under Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) rules and are closed. For example, there are letters and enclosures from physicians to lawyers containing medical information identified with specific patients. These items are CLOSED per HIPAA for 50 years after the death of the patient.

Arrangement: Chronological.

Scope and Content

This series contains a variety of records on the history of Hallmark Cards, Inc. and that of Hyatt Hotels. Hallmark was founded by Joyce C. Hall in 1910. Later, his son Donald J. Hall took over the company and it was he who was in charge when the Hyatt skywalks collapsed in 1981. Hyatt Hotels Corporation was founded in 1957 by Jay Pritzker. In the 1970s, Donald Hall led a development program in downtown Kansas City with the goal of improving the city, attracting businesses and people. The site would be called Crown Center, after the crown logo for Hallmark. Part of Crown Center was a shopping district, the other part hotels. Hall met with Pritzker and together they chose to build a Hyatt Hotel in Crown Center. Hallmark owned the hotel, and Hyatt managed it. The Hyatt Hotel at Crown Center opened in 1980. One year later, the skywalks in the lobby collapsed. These documents chronicle the history of Hallmark and Hyatt as well as a sample of correspondence related to the companies' and building's history.

Scope and Content

The legal documents in this series originated with attorney Bob Gordon. As with the Correspondence, Official Series, these legal documents are subject to attorney-client privilege and attorney work-product.

Missouri's work-product doctrine is detailed in Rule 56-01(b)(3). "Work-product" includes correspondence from attorney-to-attorney, judge-to-judge or any combination therein. It also includes attorney and judge notes that may or may not have been sent to any other party, especially if those notes involve a strategy, are draft items or reveal a thought process. Items of work-product are not subject to discovery by opposing counsel. In addition to attorney-to-attorney correspondence, etc., some of the letters in this series contain handwritten notations and therefore fall under the doctrine.

Federal rules regarding work-product are outlined in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(3). The gist of the federal rule is very similar to the state's. Rule 26(b)(3) applies to the U.S. Western District cases.

The collection donor, Rick Serrano, obtained most or all of the files in this series from attorney Bob Gordon's son. The Archives has no documentation from any of the litigants granting informed consent to Gordon or any other attorney to release any of their correspondence, which is what is required under Rule 4-1.6(a). The Archives has not made determinations on all the items that could potentially fall under Rule 4-1.6(a). Therefore, unless otherwise indicated, this entire series of records is RESTRICTED. For those items where determinations have been made, the access status will be open or CLOSED. To make an appeal for specific restricted item(s) to be opened, please contact the Archives and staff will evaluate on a case-by-case basis. Items with existing "OPEN" approval are indicated as such.
