From the State Archivist

Government photographs are often designed to document a moment: politicians meeting with their constituents; a governor signing a bill; the dedication of a new bridge; a landscape being changed. Yet, it is amazing how the patina of time suddenly makes these rather ordinary photographs more interesting. The constituent proves a key figure in a corruption scandal; the minor aide at the governor's side later becomes a powerful United States Senator; at its end the Missouri River bridge becomes controversial; the clear cut Bootheel landscape is drained and planted in cotton. More routinely, photographs of cars, houses, or clothing become quaint, and evocative of a way of life now lost.

State government, at its photographic best, however, encourages artful and arresting images. This is very much the case with the photographs of Gerald Massie, who served as Missouri's official state photographer between 1945 and 1972. His October induction into Missouri's Photojournalism Hall of Fame is a testament to his talent and to his drive to create unique images of his state. The

Woman making soap — circa 1915

Missouri State Archives is proud to serve as the principal repository of his photographs. (See article, p. 4)

The photograph and print collection of the Missouri State Archives contains more than 400,000 visual images, and enjoys impressive growth each year as more photographs are found and transferred into our holdings. To show off some of the highlights from the collection we opened a building-wide exhibit entitled, "Missouri Memories: A History in Photographs" on December 7 (see cover story), and over the next few years we will be making many thousand photographs available on our Web site. But even these can only hint at the richness and depth of our collection. We cordially invite you to come and see for yourself.

Sincere Regards,

Kenneth H. Winn, PhD.
State Archivist

The Archives Opens Missouri Memories: A History in Photographs

A new Missouri State Archives photograph exhibit opened to the public on December 7, 2006, at the Kirkpatrick State Information Center. The three floors of the State Information Center, which houses the Archives, will display sixty-three unique historic images grouped thematically as “Rural Missouri,” “Lake of the Ozarks,” “Missourians on the Move,” and includes a few striking selections from the Louise and Omar Putman Collection from the 1940s. The building is open Monday through Friday 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

No single exhibit, of course, could represent the depth or breadth of the Archives’ images, which currently number more than 400,000. This visual record comes primarily from state government offices and departmental agencies, but has been enriched by donations from individual Missourians with family, organization and community collections.

The medium of photography is an important method of documenting our industry, culture, recreation and the natural landscape, and as time passes the contemporary photograph becomes a permanent record. By providing a window to the past, this exhibit illustrates history, with the expected result of either surprising you with something you did not know, reminding you of something you did or charming you with the unexpected.

We hope you are able to visit the Information Center to view Missouri Memories during coming months. Exhibit brochures will be available from the reception desk located at the entrance to the building, and guided tours can be arranged upon request. For more information, contact Visual Materials Archivist Laura R. Jolley at (573) 526-3965 or laura.jolley@sos.mo.gov.

You may also view the exhibit on-line at the Secretary of State Web site: www.sos.mo.gov.

State Photographer Gerald R. Massie Inducted into Photojournalism Hall of Fame

Gerald R. Massie, Missouri's official state photographer for almost 30 years, was inducted into the Missouri Photojournalism Hall of Fame in Washington, Missouri, on October 19, 2006. Massie was one of six new inductees recognized for their contributions to Missouri journalism and their visual point of view. Inductees were nominated on the basis of their achievement, technical innovation and integrity. Their work will be displayed at the museum at No. 8 Second Street, in historic downtown Washington, Missouri.

Gerald R. Massie self portrait with 4x5 Speed Graphic camera, c. 1950s

The Photojournalism Hall of Fame originated with the desire of Bill Miller, Sr., editor and publisher of the Washington Missourian, to make certain that photojournalists in Missouri were acknowledged for their talent. In September of 2003, Miller reached out to professional associations including the Missouri Press Association and the University of Missouri School of Journalism to make his dream a reality. He had no problem getting newspaper professionals excited about this idea, and in October of 2005, the first eight inductions were made into the Hall of Fame.

According to Professor David Rees, of the MU School of Journalism, what makes the inductees stand out from other photographers is their ability to understand the world and communicate what they see to others. Massie began communicating his particular point of view at the age of ten with his first camera, a $1.98 Brownie. Born in Clinton, Missouri, in 1911, Massie's journey took him to the Clinton Eye newspaper in high school, the Kansas City Star as a journeyman linotype operator, and then to Europe in World War II as an aerial photographer. He finally settled in Jefferson City with his wife, Henrietta, and began working for the state in 1945 at the newly formed Resources and Development Commission. As chief photographer for this division, Massie had the opportunity to develop his unique perspective, using different lenses, film, flashes and cameras.

Massie died in 1989, leaving a large body of work that documents Missouri's beautiful landscapes, industry, and agricultural practices, as well as several historical events. Representing him at the induction ceremony was his daughter Kathleen Pierce, her husband and Massie's two grandchildren Kristin and Justin Pierce. Massie's widow, Henrietta, and their son Dan both reside in Jefferson City. In her remarks to the crowd, Kathleen thanked her father for giving her and Dan the opportunity to travel Missouri on many occasions, and to be cast as subjects in many of his photographs. She said that her father always insisted on two things: that his subjects wear red, and that there be lots of beautiful clouds in the photograph. If there were no clouds on a particular day, Massie was not above adding them himself in the darkroom.

MSA Visual Materials Archivist Laura Jolley (left) and Gerald Massie's daughter Kathleen Pierce, are shown in front of exhibited Massie photographs at the Photojournalism Hall of Fame.

In 1991, Henrietta Massie donated her late husband's work to the Missouri State Archives where it can be viewed and utilized by the public. Some of Massie's award winning photographs, such as the Missouri Dragon, may also be viewed at the Missouri Photojournalism Hall of Fame. The exhibits are open on Saturday and Sunday afternoons from noon until 4:00 p.m.

Friends Host Antiques Appraisal

The recent antiques appraisal event at Summit Lake Winery was a hit with local collectors who came out to show their treasures and support the Friends of the Missouri State Archives. The St. Louis firm, Ivey-Selkirk Auctioneers and Appraisers, donated their time and expertise to long lines of participants with objects large and small. The winery graciously offered the Summit View facility in support of the event.

Attendees were restricted to two items each and nearly 250 appraisals were offered during the four-hour event.

Given the strong interest surrounding the experience, the Friends are considering a second appraisal event next year, so stay tuned for future plans.

Leadership in History Award given to St. Louis Circuit Court Records Project

The American Association for State and Local History (AASLH) recently awarded the Missouri State Archives a 2006 "Award of Merit" for national leadership with its St. Louis Circuit Court Historical Records Project. The award is the nation's most prestigious honor for achievement in the preservation and interpretation of state and local history, and has been given by AASLH for over 60 years. St. Louis Project Supervisor Michael Everman attended the ceremony in September to receive the award on behalf of the Archives. The AASLH award program encourages standards of excellence in collection, preservation and interpretation practices, and the Leadership Award in particular not only honors significant achievement in the field, but spotlights institutions and programs that have contributed innovative opportunities and projects to the larger humanities community.

The St. Louis Circuit Court Records Project has proven to be one of the most important efforts ever undertaken by the Missouri State Archives. The goal of this long-term initiative is to preserve and provide access to the unique materials contained in over four million pages of original court documents, dating from 1787 to 1875. The project has often been cited as a model partnership among public and private organizations, with state and local government, university systems, and legal and business organizations combining efforts to accomplish project goals. A 14 member academic advisory committee representing nine institutions helps suggest research themes within the collection to further studies significant to the history of St. Louis, the larger region and the United States.

For more information, contact Archivist Michael Everman at (314) 588-1746 and visit the project Web sites: www.sos.mo.gov/archives/projects/stlcircuitcourt.asp; or <http://www.stlcourtrecords.wustl.edu/index.php>.

Dennis K. Boman Seiler Fellow

Historian Dennis K. Boman was the recipient of the 2006 Supreme Court of Missouri Historical Society Robert Eldridge Seiler Fellowship. Boman teaches American History at St. Louis University and has completed two books. His latest, Lincoln's Resolute Unionist Hamilton Gamble: Dred Scott Dissenter and Missouri's Civil War Governor, was published earlier this year. Dr. Boman is currently engaged in a new project on Abraham Lincoln and civil liberties in wartime Missouri.

This work will help define the complexities of Missourians' social, political and governmental relationship with their president during the Civil

Dennis K. Boman

War.

The Supreme Court of Missouri Historical Society has funded research at the Archives since 1999, with the Archives administering each annual intern and fellowship program. The partnership between the Society and the Missouri State Archives endeavors to stimulate the study of Missouri history, and create greater awareness of the significance of our unique legal past.

Exciting New Film, The Gateway Arch: A Reflection of America

Archives supporters will remember the overflow crowds and high praise for our fall 2005 program featuring the documentary The World's Greatest Fair. Now, from the same Emmy Award-winning filmmakers, Scott Huegerich and Bob Miano and Civil Pictures, comes The Gateway Arch: A Reflection of America, the first major film about the St. Louis Arch in nearly 40 years. Huegerich and Miano will screen their documentary at the Archives this spring.

Narrated by St. Louis native Kevin Kline, the film uses interviews with historians (including State Archivist Kenneth Winn), project architects and construction workers, and offers long-lost footage recently transferred to digital cinema, as well as images from archives throughout the country.

For the first time, the complete story of the Arch is told, from Thomas Jefferson, Lewis and Clark and the pioneers to the monument's design, completion and symbolism. The documentary places the

Gateway Arch construction — July 8, 1965

Arch alongside the Statue of Liberty as a great international symbol of America.

Civil Pictures is a nonprofit company dedicated to preserving history through cinema. For more, see www.civilpictures.org.

Winter 2006–2007 Program Calendar

Missouri Courthouses: Building Memories on the Square

January 18, 2007, 7:00 p.m.

Dennis Weiser will discuss his new book, a pictorial review of Missouri's 114 county courthouses. Over three hundred images richly illustrate portraits of existing exteriors, architectural features and unique interior elements of design, as well as pictures of courthouses long ago removed from the landscape.

From the earliest log structures to the 19 courthouses constructed in Missouri under the Public Works Administration (1934–1941), to the current trend of building annexes that save the courthouse proper for administrative or judicial functions, our courthouses are true public service buildings. Each must meet very real public demands for accessibility and increased response, while managing to meet citizens' more romantic notions of "what a courthouse should look like."

Dennis Weiser is a retired photojournalist and communications specialist, currently pursuing interests in photography and art.

A book signing will follow the talk.

Listening to the Still Small Voice: The Story of George Washington Carver Paxton J. Williams.

February 8, 2007 — Special Program Time,
1:00 p.m.

Presented in Partnership with the Missouri
Department of Corrections

This one-person play written and performed by Paxton J. Williams makes use of extensive research to tell the story of one of the truly inspiring men of the twentieth century. Born into slavery near Diamond, Missouri, George Washington Carver endured a difficult and dangerous childhood but later acquired an excellent education that complemented his innate understanding of botanical science. Invited to join Booker T. Washington's Institute, Carver became known as the "Wizard of Tuskegee" and virtually revolutionized the southern agrarian economy by freeing it from continued dependence on cotton. Carver's more than 300 uses for the peanut, and hundreds more for soybeans, were simply part of his desire to "fill the poor man's empty dinner pail." He largely refused to patent or profit from his many inventions and products.

Paxton Williams is executive director of the George Washington Carver Birthplace Association, which serves to advance programs of the National Park Service at the George Washington Carver National Monument at Diamond, Missouri.

*Family History Day: ~~Don't~~ Try This at Home!
Conservation and Preservation of Family Documents*

March 10, 2007

This year's annual Family History Day will offer informative and in-depth sessions for learning document care and preservation skills you can perform at home. Professional conservator Sandy Hempe will lead a hands-on workshop for introduction and practice with differing methods for surface-cleaning documents, using brushes, rubber sponges and plastic erasers. Ms. Hempe will also make a general presentation on the importance of restoring moisture to documents, known as humidification, for flat storage or display of family papers. Registration is required for the instruction on surface-cleaning.

Special Appreciation for E-Volunteers on the Missouri Death Certificate Database Project

Public interest and patron demand for the Death Certificate Online Database remains very strong eight months after its initial release with 3.5 million hits reached thus far. The database now connects to scanned certificates from 1910 through 1929, with imaging of 1930 certificates well underway. For those yet to be scanned, the Archives reference staff received over 9,000 pieces of mail asking for nearly 35,000 copied certificates between April and October of this year.

The Friends of the Missouri State Archives also provides an expedited service for those who wish to have unscanned death certificates located and copied quickly—generally in one to two weeks (<http://www.friendsofmsa.org/support/menu.htm>). For a fee of $5 per name, those desiring unscanned copies of death certificates may ask for as many requests as they please.

Thus far, the Friends have received over 2,600 expedited copy requests. All fees generated from the Friends' service will be dedicated exclusively to the Death Certificate project. Regular Archives reference services continue to be available for $1 per request with the following parameters: a limit of five names per request form and an estimated eight to ten week response time for receipt of copies due to continued high demand.

For more information, visit: <http://www.sos.mo.gov/archives/resources/deathcertificates>.

The certificates are prepared for scanning by 38 local in-house volunteers. These invaluable volunteers have already worked over 4,300 hours. We are grateful for their service.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank each of the nearly 600 E-Volunteers across the nation who worked to bring the database effort to completion; without them, the project would not resemble its present form. The volunteers listed below have contributed a combined 27,400 hours of indexing and data entry to build this valuable genealogical and social history resource.
