HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

Extradition requests are used to return persons charged with crimes (commonly called "fugitives from justice") to the state in which he or she is wanted. Although the request is usually granted as a matter of form, the governor has the power to call for an investigation to determine whether the fugitive ought to be surrendered (Missouri Revised Statutes, Section 548.041).

Historically, a differentiation was made between so-called "domestic" extraditions, which refer to requests made from Missouri to other states, and "foreign" extraditions, which refer to requests made from other states to Missouri. That separation in the records ended in 1985, when all extraditions were combined into a single and ongoing series. There is also a series that actually comes from foreign countries, which should not be confused with "foreign" extraditions within the United States.

ADDITIONAL DESCRIPTIVE INFORMATION

Related Material

Extraditions earlier than 1865, along with those contemporaneous with the records here, may be found in the Register of Civil Proceedings (1837-1971).

EXTRADITIONS, 1985-2010

Extent: 123.6 cubic feet (309 legal-size Hollinger boxes)

Arrangement: Chronologically by year and thereunder alphabetically by surname

Scope and Content

This ongoing series contains domestic and foreign extraditions from the year 1985, when the two types of extraditions began to be filed together. Starting in 2007, the series title changed from Domestic and Foreign Extraditions to simply Extraditions.

For each extradition request, there should be the following documentation: application or petition for requisition with copies of indictments, affidavits, and other supporting documentation that recite the details of the alleged crime and relate them to the criminal code of the requesting state; opinion of attorney general as to whether the request has the required legal elements; and copy of the warrant of arrest, which is signed by the governor and attested to by the secretary of state. Often the file will also include identifying information on the fugitive, including fingerprints, physical descriptions, and photographs.
