HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

The first training school for nurses in Missouri opened in 1884 as the St. Louis Training School. Other schools were established in subsequent years, mostly in St. Louis and Kansas City, including the first training school for Black nurses at Provident Hospital for Negroes in St. Louis.

Training school alumnae groups began to form, but eventually became an advocacy group for more standardization and training for nurses across the state. The first of these groups was the St. Louis Protestant Hospital Alumnae Association in 1895. These groups would eventually become the Missouri State Nurses Association with the first meeting in Kansas City on October 2, 1906. The goal of the newly established group was to set standardizations and educational requirements for nursing across the state, much like other health professions. An effort was made in 1907 with Senate Bill 434 "An act providing for the examination of nurses," which passed the Senate, but not the Missouri House of Representatives.

In 1909, Senate Bill 157, "An act to provide for the examination, regulation and registration of nurses, and providing for the appointment of a board of examiners to examine applicants for registration as nurses, and to provide for the punishment of offenders against this act" passed on May 6, 1909. Although less rigorous version of what the Missouri Nurse's Association wanted, it required that nurses be 21 years old, have a nursing degree or one year's training in hospital to take the certification exam, and established a State Board of Nursing. That same law decided that after 1912, a diploma from a training school connected to a hospital and at least two years experienced was required in order to take the certification exam. The State Board of Nursing kept these certificates and they were also filed with the Secretary of State's Office. Additionally, nurses were asked to file their certificates with the county clerk in the county in which they resided. The above requirements were not necessary if caring for a friend or family member or were a personal nurse for hire.

In 1921, Senate Bill 380 passed modifying some of the provisions of the above including requiring more stringent training and included provisions regarding licensure of attendants. These rules were rescinded with the passage of House Bill 431 the next legislative session in 1923, which did however, include requirements for training of obstetrical nurses. In 1939, the training requirements were overhauled with the passage of Senate Bill 284 gaining back much of the educational requirements lost in 1923. This also allowed Missouri nurses enough training that they could qualify for reciprocity in other states.

The State Board of Nursing became a part of the Department of Education's Division of Registration and Examination in 1945. Since then, the State Board of Nursing has been located within several different state agencies including Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation, and Licensing (1974), Department of Economic Development (1984), Department of Insurance, Financial Institutions, and Professional Registration (2006), and Department of Commerce and Insurance (2019).

Currently, the nine member Board appointed by the Governor determines the scope of practice of licensed nurses and defines who may use the title of registered nurse (R.N.) and licensed practical nurse (L.P.N.)

REGISTERS, 1910-1914, 1921-1937

Extent: 2 volumes (2 flat storage boxes)

Arrangement: Chronological

Scope and Content

The first volume is dated 1910-1914 and lists only date of the exam and the name, address, and graduating hospital of the examinee. The second volume starts in 1921 and ends in 1937 and includes date of exam, name and address, place and date of birth, school of nursing (hospital) from which graduated, grades, license number, license date, date, and remarks. Because the first register was unbound and the first pages removed to be framed, it is in poor condition. The second volume is also in poor condition with a missing spine, missing title page, and loose first page.

Register, 1921-1937 is partially restricted due to the presence of grades.
