MO. SEC OF STATE

Be it resolved by the people of the state of Missouri that the Constitution be amended:

Article III of the Constitution is revised by adding one new Section to be known as Article III, Section 54 to read as follows:

Section 54.

1. The legislature shall be prohibited from attempting to repeal or amend any measure enacted by citizen initiative, or pass any law functionally approximating one rejected by referendum petition, unless eighty percent of legislators refer the change to voters, notwithstanding sections 2(a) and 2(b) of Article XII of this Constitution, sections 27, 29, 31, 32, and 52(a) of Article III of this Constitution, and any other provision of law or of this Constitution to the contrary. For the purposes of this subsection, the phrase "attempting to repeal or amend any measure enacted by citizen initiative" shall be construed to mean proposing or passing any law or constitutional amendment which, if enacted, would modify, repeal, or supersede, whether in whole or in part, and whether explicitly or by implication, any law or constitutional provision enacted by citizen initiative. This subsection shall be construed to protect not only laws and constitutional provisions enacted by citizen initiative after the effective date of this section but also laws and constitutional provisions enacted by citizen initiative on or prior to the effective date of this section. This subsection shall be construed to protect against not only laws functionally approximating those rejected by referendum petition after the effective date of this section but also laws functionally approximating those rejected by referendum petition on or prior to the effective date of this section.

2. No legislatively-referred constitutional amendment shall impede citizens' initiative or referendum power, notwithstanding sections 2(a) and 2(b) of Article XII of this Constitution, section 1 of Article III of this Constitution, and any other provision of law or of this Constitution to the contrary. The phrase "impede citizens' initiative or referendum power" shall be construed broadly, examples thereof including, but not being limited to, raising signature thresholds; shortening the time allowed for signature collection; narrowing allowable subject matter; imposing additional requirements on petitioners; preventing or delaying judicial revision of misleading ballot titles; prohibiting or nullifying severability clauses in initiated measures; or rendering a simple statewide majority of votes cast on the measure by individual legal voters insufficient to enact a law or constitutional amendment proposed by citizen initiative.

3. Ballot measures proposed by petition or the legislature shall be decided at general elections, except when the governor and eighty percent of legislators approve special elections, notwithstanding section 52(b) of Article III of this Constitution, section 2(b) of Article XII of this Constitution, and any other provision of law or of this Constitution to the contrary. This subsection shall not be construed to permit any approval of a special election to cover any measure other than the single measure specifically named in the approval resolution.

4. Courts shall immediately rewrite misleading ballot titles to be unbiased, clear, and accurate, notwithstanding sections 2(b) and 3(c) of Article XII of this Constitution and any other provision of law or of this Constitution to the contrary.

5. Notwithstanding any other provision of law or of this Constitution to the contrary, pre-existing signature and vote requirements shall be maintained, as follows: a simple statewide majority of votes cast on the measure by individual legal voters shall be sufficient to enact any law or constitutional amendment proposed by initiative petition; a simple statewide majority of votes cast on the measure by individual legal voters shall be sufficient to reject any law upon which a referendum is ordered by referendum petition; signatures from five percent of the individual legal voters in each of two-thirds of Missouri's congressional districts shall be sufficient to propose a law; signatures from eight percent of the individual legal voters in each of two-thirds of Missouri's congressional districts shall be sufficient to propose a constitutional amendment; signatures from five percent of the individual legal voters in each of two-thirds of Missouri's congressional districts shall be sufficient to order a referendum; and the number of signatures required shall be calculated based on the total vote for governor at the general election last preceding the filing of any petition.

6. This section is self-executing and shall be construed to strongly protect the citizens' powers of initiative and referendum, all political power being vested in the people and founded upon their will only.

7. If any provision of subsections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, or 6 of this section or the application thereof to anyone or to any circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of those provisions and the application of such provisions to others or other circumstances shall not be affected thereby.
