20 CSR 1140-10.020 Branch Deposits

PURPOSE: Section 362.915, RSMo, prohibits a bank holding company from obtaining control of a depository financial institution if the combined deposits of the holding company and the financial institution exceed a certain percentage of the total deposits in all depository financial institutions in the state. The advent of interstate branching makes it necessary to determine which deposits are located in Missouri. This rule describes the process by which that determination is made.

(1) The total deposits of a bank or depository financial institution in Missouri, and the total deposits of all depository financial institutions in Missouri controlled by a bank holding company which is seeking to acquire a bank or institution under section 362.920, RSMo, shall not, for purposes of section 362.915, RSMo, include deposits of offices located outside of Missouri.

(2) The total deposits in all depository financial institutions in Missouri shall not, for purposes of section 362.915, RSMo, include deposits of offices located outside of Missouri.

(3) A bank holding company seeking to acquire a bank or depository financial institution under section 362.920, RSMo, shall be attributed all deposits at Missouri offices of depository financial institutions controlled by the bank holding company.

(4) The commissioner of finance shall use the most timely reports available, whether published at year-end, mid-year, or any other date within the previous twelve (12) months, in order to determine the location of deposits attributed to offices in this state and outside this state.

All holding companies seeking to acquire a Missouri-based bank shall provide the director with the information necessary to make such a finding in a timely fashion whether or not an application is required by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.
