State Board of Education

Under the Missouri Constitution (Article IX), the State Board of Education has general authority for “supervision of instruction in the public schools.” Today, this responsibility includes the oversight of educational programs and services that serve Missourians from preschool through the adult levels.

The State Board of Education is composed of eight lay citizens, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate to serve eight-year terms. The terms are staggered so that one term expires each year. No more than four members may belong to the same political party. No more than one member of the board may live in the same county or congressional district.

The board appoints the commissioner of education to serve as its chief executive officer and as director of the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education. The board is required by law to meet at least twice a year in Jefferson City. Generally, though, the board meets for two days each month.

The primary role of the board is to provide leadership and advocacy for the improvement of Missouri’s public education system. The board also establishes policies and regulations needed to carry out state and federal laws related to public education. The board’s major duties include:

- Setting accreditation standards for local school districts through the Missouri School Improvement Program (MSIP). The accreditation standards define basic requirements for curriculum, student performance, staffing, high school graduation and other areas of school operations.

- Establishing “academic performance standards” for the public schools and designing an assessment system to measure students’ learning, as required by state law.
- Setting education and certification requirements for all professional personnel (teachers, administrators, librarians, counselors, etc.) in public schools.
- Approving educator-preparation programs in the state’s community colleges and four-year institutions, both public and private.
- Establishing regulations and administrative requirements for the distribution of state and federal funds to school districts and other agencies.
- Monitoring school districts’ compliance with state and federal laws and regulations. This includes the administration of federally supported programs in the areas of special education, career-technical education and child nutrition (the school lunch and breakfast programs).
- Administering the Missouri School for the Blind (St. Louis), the Missouri School for the Deaf (Fulton) and the system of State Schools for Severely Handicapped.
- Administering vocational rehabilitation services for adult citizens with disabilities. (See Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.)

Department of Elementary and Secondary Education

Article IX of the Missouri Constitution reads, in part: “A general diffusion of knowledge and intelligence being essential to the preservation of the rights and liberties of the people, the General Assembly shall establish and maintain free public schools for the gratuitous instruction of all persons in this state within ages not in excess of twenty-one years as prescribed by law.”

To help carry out this mandate the legislature first established a state office of education, with an elected state superintendent, in 1839. The office went through several transformations until the current constitution, adopted in 1945, established the State Board of Education in its present form and created a Department of Education, headed by an appointed commissioner of education.

The Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) was reorganized and established in its present form by the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974.

The department is primarily a service agency that works with educators, legislators, government agencies, community leaders and citizens to maintain a strong public education system. Through its statewide school-improvement initiatives and its regulatory functions, the department strives to assure that all citizens have access to high-quality public education.

The Department of Elementary and Secondary Education is the administrative arm of the State Board of Education. In addition to the commissioner of education, the senior staff of the department consists of one deputy commissioner, one associate commissioner and five assistant commissioners. The associate and assistant commissioners each head one of the department's six main divisions.
